2016	3. Love Should Not Hurt	Are you concerned about your own relationship? Someone else's? Do you just want to be more informed? Whatever your motivation, educating yourself about the issue is the first step to ending domestic violence. Teen dating violence affects teens across the country. Physical violence isn't the only type of abuse. You could be harming someone close to you in verbal or emotional ways, like through name calling, put-down, isolation and other types of control. You may not realize it, but some of your actions may be hurtful or even abusive. Lots of people do not recognize abuse when it happens or don't know how to tell whether or not a relationship is healthy. Educate yourself about domestic violence. You will learn ways to recognize abuse early on in a relationship.
